Trench Coat Mafia

The Trench Coat Mafia is often associated with the tragic events at Columbine High School in 1999. However, it's important to clarify that the group was not involved in the violence that occurred. The Trench Coat Mafia was a group of friends at Columbine who wore black trench coats and were known for their distinctive style and standing out from the mainstream student body. They were a visible presence in the school, but the myths surrounding them grew out of misinformation during a time of confusion and fear. It's crucial to separate fact from fiction and recognize that the actions of individuals should not define or stigmatize a group.
